PHOENIX, ARIZONA, JULY 6, 1911.

Reciprocity a Long Rope.

It is claimed by no one that President Taft is a politician in either a good or a bad sense. Whether or not he possesses the requisite finesse, he has never employed it to his own advantage. His frankness has almost invariably handicapped him. Therefore, any move he has made to his own advantage on the political chessboard has been regarded as an accident, or, we should say, as an incident in his program for the performance of his duty.

The happiest, most far-reaching of these accidents, or incidents, has been his conception of Canadian reciprocity, which, unprompted as it appeared at first, has strengthened him as nothing else could have done, and has resulted in something else that could not have been contemplated, the discrediting and wrecking of the insurgent movement which, a few months ago, was of alarming proportions, a growing menace to the president.

But for this effect, not reciprocity, but the insane folly of the insurgent leaders, is responsible. The folly might have been abandoned at an early stage of the struggle without great damage to the progressive movement if the "progressive" leaders had been observant of the effect upon "the people," for whom they had professed so deep solicitude.

Possessed of a crazy notion that by defeating reciprocity they could deprive the president of the advantage which its success seemed to assure, they pursued their way to political destruction. They allied themselves with a coterie of standpatters, hateful to the country, and sought in vain to bring the democrats into a conspiracy for the defeat of the reciprocity bill, which promised a large, though not complete, measure of those reforms, the unsatisfied demand for which formed the very basis of insurgency. If these demands had been heeded and there had been even a concession in the sixty-first congress, the Murdock uprising would not have taken place.

If the insurgent leaders, in opposing reciprocity, had honestly stated that their opposition was directed against the president and not against the principle of reciprocity, they would have found themselves in a better position, for the president was not then so popular as he has since become.

But they resorted to deception so palpable that the people were not fooled. They readily recognized that Messrs. La Follette, Cummins and Bristow were either ignoramuses or demagogues, and, in either case, were unfit leaders. The press of the country, republican, democratic and independent, was quick to turn against them, so that they are now left without any support other than that of the muck-raking magazines and newspapers, which do not attempt a defense of their fight against reciprocity, but endeavor to show that tariff reform is but a part of the progressive movement.

It is true that the respectable press is not a unit in favor of reciprocity. Some leading republican journals oppose it, but none of them welcome the insurgents as workers in support of the principle of protection.

Though the opposition in congress admitted its hopelessness two weeks ago, the insurgents have persisted in their purpose until now, of "showing the country." But that purpose is on the point of being abandoned, though La Follette will deliver himself of his long advertised speech in opposition. Bristow, however, has heard from home and will not attempt further obstruction of the reciprocity bill by futile amendments.

Meanwhile, the La Follette boom has "busted" in its launching and at least a half dozen members of the National Progressive League have informed him that the republicanism of Taft is good enough for them.

Reciprocity supplied insurgency with plenty of rope, and it used it.

Shifting About at Seattle.

The Republican has from time to time pointed out the injustice of withholding the suffrage from women, yet leaving it in the hands of ignorant, irresponsible, vicious male citizens. It has been our belief that with votes for women many badly needed reforms would be secured. We have had, and yet have, faith in the superior judgment of women, believing that they would increase the average of intelligence of the active electorate that is, that women who are not well informed would not go to the polls. Of men, on the contrary, the more ignorant are frequently the most active on election day.

There may be instances, though, of too much feminine enthusiasm while the weapon is new. We suspect that there is a case of this kind at Seattle, where for the first time women this year exercised the privilege of voting.

At a recall election last February, the entire city government was changed, and not too soon. Mayor Gill, by the way, a product of a reform movement, was displaced along with the council and other elective officials by Mayor Dilling and a new council. The women voters effected this change.

Now petitions are being circulated for the recall of three five-month-old councilmen, and in this effort at further purification the women are said to be the dominant element. The alleged unfitness of the menaced councilmen is not described in the Seattle dispatches.

The women are also moving for the recall of Mayor Dilling, whose offense is set forth. He has persisted in retaining in office a jailer whose removal has been demanded. As to the crime of the jailer we lack information.

Globe ought to be a good field for a competent oculist. On Monday morning, in the early daylight, a man from the window of the court house shot and killed a prisoner lying in his cell across the way. The slayer walked out of the court house and down the street, observed by a section of Globe's population, but on account of the prevailing affection at Globe of astigmatism, no man who saw him feels like saying who he thinks the murderer is lest he commit an injustice.

Finances and Markets

New York, July 5.—Movements of stocks seemed governed largely today by the tenor of reports with regard to crop prospects. The selling movement of Monday was resumed on a large scale, and pronounced weakness developed in the action of the market, suggesting that it was suffering from the effects of a crop scare. Prices fell from one to two points in a majority of the active issues, with a break of 3 1/2 in Canadian Pacific. Anxiety as to crops was not relieved by the government's weekly weather report, which told of the marked deficiency in precipitation over the agricultural districts and intense heat over a wide area. Excited dealings in grains, especially in corn, also aided the bears in their stock operations. All the European exchanges were weak, owing to the tense situation which has grown out of the Moroccan imbroglio.

Official denial that the Erie road was affiliated with the Canadian Pacific caused a sharp set back in the Erie stocks, as well as in the stocks of the Canadian road and the selling of these issues presumably of a speculative character was among the day's most prominent features. Both the Hill and Harriman stocks were unusually weak. The Erie, the Harrimans and the United Steel were sold rather heavily from abroad. United States Steel displayed the same power of stubborn resistance to pressure which has characterized its movements recently and lost only a fraction. The stock may have been influenced by news in regard to the steel and iron trade, which was somewhat more cheerful.

New orders of the United States Steel corporation last month were placed at 4,900 to 5,900 tons above the preceding month. Attention was again called to the discouraging conditions in the textile industry by dispatches from South Carolina, stating that all the cotton mills of the state had entered upon a drastic policy of retrenchment.

There were numerous railroad reports for May, that of the Great Northern being most conspicuous, with its loss of net earnings of over $317,000.

Bonds were steadier. Total sales, par value, $2,800,000. United States 4's declined 1/4 on call.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. Sold by Druggists. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. TRIED RECIPES.

SWISS ROAST.

Take a round steak from two to two and one-half inches in thickness and pound into it as much flour as it will take, using the edges of a plate for that purpose. When the flour has been pounded into both sides take the meat and brown it on both sides; remove to a saucepan, heat one-half can of tomatoes, one large onion cut fine, one sweet pepper, if desired, pour over the meat, cover tightly and cook slowly two or three hours. Just before the meat is done salt and pepper to taste. Delicious when served hot, also nice when cold.—Cleveland Plaindealer.
